ARTEMUS WARD ON DRAMA.—"Mr. Ward" has been annoyed by the remarks of ignorant people upon his great show. Many papers ... that his "wax figgers" are not of a character elevated and refined. He says:

"I maintain that wax figgers is more elevatin than all the plays ever written. Take Shakspeer for instance. People think he's great things, but I contend quite the reverse to the contrary. What sort of sense is thar to King Leer, who goes round cussin his darters, chawing hay, and throwing straws at folks, and larfing like a silly old koot and making a ass of himself generally.

There's Mrs. Macbeth—she's a nice kind of a woman to have, ain't she—a puttin old Mac, her husband, up to slayin Duncan with a cheese knife, while he was paying a friendly visit to their house. O its nice morality I spose, when she larfs wildly and ses 'gin me the daggers—I'll let his bowels out,' or words to that effect—I say this is all strickly proper, I don't? That Jack Fawlstaff is likewise an immoral old cuss, take him as you may; and Hamlit is as crazy as a loon. Thare's Richard Third—people think he's great things, but I look upon him in the lite of a monster. He kills every body he takes a notion to, in cold blood, and then goes to sleep in his tent. Bimeby he wakes up and yells for a hoss so he can go orf and kill some more people. If he aint a fit speciment for the gallis, then I shud like to no war yu find um? Thare's Iergo, who is more onery than pisen. See how shamefully he treated that highly respectable injun gentleman Mr. Othello, making him for to believe his wife was too thick with Cashio. Observe how Iergo got Cashio drunk, as a biled owl on corn whisky, in order to carry out his sneakin desires. See how he works Mr. Othello's feelins up so that he goes and makes Dasdemony swaller a pillar which caused her death. But stop. At some future time I shall continue my remarks on the dramar, in which I shall show the vast superiority of wax figgers, snaix, and the fixins in an intellectual pint of view."

MRS. LINCOLN'S SITUATION.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican most mistakenly says:

The scheme for a popular subscription to raise $100 000 for Mrs. Lincoln has been abandoned. It has been ascertained that the late President left an ample fortune—very much larger than was at first supposed. Popular respect for Lincoln, will be exhibited in subscriptions to the monuments to be erected to his memory; or, still better, to the erection of homes for disabled soldiers, in his name."

No part of the above most mischievous paragraph is true. The subscription for the widow and surviving children of our late ... President has not been abandoned, and will not be, though its success may be defeated by such cruel fabrications. On the contrary, it is now going forward ... (R. B. ..., No. 95 Wall street) is one of our most ... merchants, and the effort is backed by a number of our worthiest and most honored citizens. All that is asked is one dollar from each person who is willing to contribute that sum toward ... up to Mrs. Lincoln and her children the ... whereof they were deprived by the assassin's pistol. That is all.

We have hitherto stubbornly refused to say a word concerning the circumstances in which Mr. Lincoln's death left his family, but now we not only ... asking the American people to pay their righteous debt to their sentinel shot down at his post. But it is not true, far from it, that "the late President left an ample fortune." On the contrary, we happen to know that Lincoln's executor, and nearest friend, U. S. Judge David Davis, of Illinois, after taking an account of the estate, has notified Mrs. Lincoln that she must not ... to keep house on her means but must board. So much in reply to the Republican, and we trust not to feel constrained to return to the topic.—N. Y. Tribune.

GERMANY AND AMERICA.—We learn from our German files that ... has been made in Europe of the close of our war, there is an immense growth of the popular desire for emigration to America. Even during the progress of the war, and while the prospects of our country looked worst, there were tens of thousands of stout, industrious, intelligent Germans, who left their native land and came over to make their homes in the United States. But for every one who emigrated last season, ... who desire and purpose emigrating this year. They have learned a great deal about America during the war—about its resources, its agricultural and mineral wealth, its ... and ... facilities, and the unequalled opportunities it offers for industry and labor. They have ... also, that it has a safe and strong, as well as a free and beneficent Government. The results of the war, the state of ... during its progress, and the condition of affairs after its close, are final arguments in behalf of republicanism. An English paper tells us that now "Austria and Prussia are filled with the spirit of emigration," and that, "... is ... rated with American securities."

There is room and plenty in America for all those emigrants. There is even more room now than ever. Every State of the free West is eager to get them, from the Ohio river to the Missouri. The Mineral States and territories of the Rocky Mountains are anxious to have them. The States of the South, now free and open to all, could absorb tens of ... and ... be made incalculably richer ... They ... fear no anarchy or disorder anywhere. Law is ... where dominant; ... order and freedom ... —N. Y. Post.

CONSPIRACY DEVELOPING.—A man who registered his name as M. D. Beers, was at ... Hotel, Buffalo, lately. No particular notice was taken of him until a card ... his entrance to his room, with the following in the same handwriting as his name on the register:

"F. C. Dent—As Booth is dead and Davis caught, there is but little hope for the Circle. God must have prevented our plans from being executed. If Surratt had not failed our plans would have been carried, Virginia regained and our cause saved. All is lost.

P. S.—You failed. If I live I will expose you. Surratt should die. I wish to live, but I think we are all surrounded, and will be ... ght."

[illegible] MORNING, JULY [illegible], 18[illegible]

A Dictator at Last.

But a little while ago, it was very generally supposed that the Southern Confederacy had at all the ladders upon which it could rely and that a government [illegible] was left without an official head. A letter [illegible] issued by [illegible] which [illegible] is now entirely unknown to the world [illegible] who has assumed the tattered shreds of Confederate authority in the name of a lately [illegible]. It [illegible] will dispel this illusion. All mankind, it seems, have been mistaken. The hopes of the defeated are not yet lost. A chivalrous [illegible] federate appears at an opportune moment [illegible] with that pompous assurance which always shows a capacity to govern and which [illegible] men by reason of that natural superiority which is apparent in such a character attempts [illegible] the wavering resolution of a people who seem inclined to give up all for lost. In fact a genius named George N. Sanders, assumes the dictatorship and from his proud position in Canada addresses a document under his imperial hand to the "patriots of the South." This edict cunningly informs those to whom it is addressed how they can retrieve by strategy what they have lost in open war. The expert wiles of this person who seems now to hold an opinion similar to that which distinguished Belial in the great consultation fabled of old, will, no question, lead to the achievement of great results if the whole affair be as shrewdly managed as it is devised. It is proposed to the people of the South to quietly submit, to take every oath that is required of them, to form political alliances with their friends in the North to get possession of the Government, and then to turn with all the fury of long cherished vengeance upon the enemies who have overwhelmed them.

The foregoing is an outline of the dictator's plan. True, it does not possess the merit of entire originality since not a few of those political allies upon whom the exiled charlatan depends for aid, have anticipated him in proposing nearly the same thing. The suggestion that comes all the way from Montreal, shows that reliance is still placed on those in the North, who, when the war began, were fully expected to organize a f[illegible] to prevent an army from marching toward the "sacred soil," and who have since on innumerable occasions, appeared to be fully ready to rise in insurrection, but have nevertheless somehow failed to fulfill the expectations of their forsaken friends.

But it seems that the power of the "Confederacy" is reviviscent in the person or hands of the great Sanders. An organized government is indeed given up for the present, but after a convenient time it is to be resumed. If the Confederates and their friends can get possession of the old Government, will it not be just as well for them as to establish a new one? George the outlaw, profoundly concludes that it will be quite as well. Hence, he now takes it upon himself, as the sole representative of the "Confederate Government," to dictate to "Southern patriots," not forgetting the Northern allies from whom so much has been hoped, a plan, which if carried out, will relieve all their woes. Of course this benefactor expects to be remembered by a grateful people, and to have his services rewarded in a manner suitable to the dignity he has assumed. Just now, however, he is somewhat in request in the United States, so much so, at least, that twenty five thousand dollars are offered for his appearance at a levee, shortly to be held at Washington. The chances are very strong that the hanging of Sanders, the new dictator, will spoil a part of the plan, and it is very certain that the remainder of the most excellent scheme will be foiled by the same people who triumphantly extinguished the rebellion.

DON'T LIKE IT.—From every place we have heard of, the Copperheads seem to be deeply grieved at the manner in which the Fourth of July was celebrated. It appears that they cannot endure to hear the distresses and calamities which have befallen the "Confederacy," spoken of in their presence. Orators every where took occasion on that day to rejoice in the triumph of the National armies and the complete annihilation of the rebel power, and it seems that these "taunts" were more than some of our fellow citizens could bear. They didn't relish the words of exultant joy which patriots uttered at the "funeral" of their rebellious friends. In south, it was too much. Why should their honest grief for the overthrow of a "gallant nation of brothers," and for the abolition of that most holy and scriptural institution of slavery, be insulted by "unfeeling wretches" who triumphed by the mere brute force of the swarms they sent forth to conquest, and who, while the vanquished and their political friends are yet in mourning, sing paeans in the presence of grief and around the grave of the departed "Southern Government" and the beautiful system on which it was founded? Here is another proof of "abolition depravity." They whose hearts are so indurated as to prompt them to rejoice over the victories our Government has gained, and that too on an occasion when it was well known that every word caused a pang in the bosoms of the many mourners who were present do, no doubt, seem to our stricken friends too pitilessly cruel to be moved by the deepest misery that can afflict poor agonized humanity. Hereafter, if patriots would spare these sorrowing mourners, let no mention ever be made of the gloomy fate that has engulfed their rebellious friends.

SEMMES.—A correspondent of the New York Times, in Alabama, recently had the felicity of hearing the confessions and lamentations of the chivalrous Southerner, who, when his piratical craft was sunk, lustily bawled out, "Save me, I am the Captain!" "The Captain" thinks the "gentlemen" who brought on the war are now in so deplorable a condition that they will have to go elsewhere to preserve their dignity and keep up their aristocratic bearing. The Yankees now are thought by "the Captain" to be a different sort of people from those they were taken for. Hear some of Semmes' sententious sayings:

The country is ruined—Southern gentlemen are utterly reduced to poverty by these cruel invaders—there is no hope left—such as can get away will have to seek some corner of the earth where they can live as gentlemen—he had no doubt that the negro was happy in a state of slavery—freedom as understood by the negro, is worse than slavery in any form, and the Yankees find it so; the Yankees meant that Southern slavery should perish, and they have succeeded; they are the smartest and the worst people on the top of the earth; history furnishes no record of a people so industrious and so persevering in what they undertake—the defeat of the South, with a cause so just is a deep mystery that bears the appearance of [illegible] holding against the South, but that could not be a fact for the reason that the sacrifices and devotion of the Southern people were so sincere and religious.

THE SHENANDOAH? The Port which arrived on Thursday from the Micronesian Islands, reports that on the 20th of March in lat 3° N., long 167 [illegible], he was brought to and boarded by a boat from a vessel of war carrying the English flag, and hailing as the Hussar. The officers and boat's crew were armed with cutlasses and revolvers. After examining the schooner's papers she was allowed to proceed on her course, while the stranger sailed off in the direction of Ascension Island some 300 or 400 miles distant. She was a propeller but under sail, and apparently very fast. From the fact that there is no British man of war called the Hussar, and moreover that her officers were particular in their inquiries as to the whereabouts of American whalers it is quite a natural supposition that this was the Shenandoah which lately recruited at Melbourne and is now cruising on her errand of destruction in the Pacific.—Hawaiian Gazette, June 24th.

Boise and Owyhee

[illegible] CITY, July 7, 186[illegible].

The excitement [illegible] still among the quartz hunters and [illegible] quite amicably and respectably. Several stages were running from the different towns in the creek to the place so often [illegible]. The procession [illegible] at 10 o'clock. The original thirteen States were [illegible] little girls bearing flags and [illegible] in their vehicle [illegible] and [illegible] which was the main [illegible] of the day. A [illegible] oration [illegible] and there was speaking [illegible] Declaration of Independence [illegible] singing [illegible] there was a most creditable [illegible] for a mining town in the mountains.

THE MORNING STAR MILL.

Any person who [illegible] to see what this country affords in the way of quartz mills, should examine the two piles that lie at the mill of Messrs. Marion Moore & Co. just below Silver City where hundreds of tons of rock from the Morning Star and Oro Fino ledges are piled up awaiting their turn to be worked in the mill. This rock has an average of [illegible] and the sight of [illegible] of such ore ought to speak loudly enough to satisfy the most incredulous of the extent and value of the mineral resources of Owyhee. This ore is rich in gold and silver and each ledge shows a width [illegible] feet in the lower levels. The mines also have been well developed. No others here had a thorough showing, although there is reason to suppose that many others would pay as well with the same amount of work done.

The mill of Messrs. Moore & Co. is continually at work on the Oro Fino quartz which is more easily reduced and worked than the ore from the Morning Star. Soon the mill will receive more [illegible] machinery, so that the [illegible] will be worked and then the intention is to crush several hundred tons from the Morning Star. I shall be prepared before long to speak more fully concerning these two ledges and shall reserve a more extended account of them until I can speak more advisedly. In the meantime I can say with perfect confidence that this whole region is developing satisfactorily and surely. [illegible] mills will be in operation this fall if present calculations are carried out. Three are now being built and three more are on the road here. The new discovery I wrote of has a promise of assisting to furnish them with something to work on.

VIA CANYON CITY TO OWYHEE.

I have just met an old gentleman lately arrived from the Dalles via Canyon City, and who has fourteen teams loaded and on the road expected here in a few days. He says the pass through the Blue Mountains to the Malheur is easy and has no hill requiring to double teams. From that point they could see an open stretch of country running south and he thinks a road could easily be made from there to strike the Owyhee at the mouth of Jordan creek. The road he came was very circuitous, down the Malheur waters to the mouth of the Owyhee and thence up Snake river. A direct road from here to the Dalles could be found in three hundred and twenty five miles, with no mountains to pass over of any magnitude. No alkali roads to travel and with abundance of grass and water all the way. This matter I commend to those Oregonians who think the Owyhee trade is worth contending for.

SOUTH EASTERN OREGON.

We are at this point within fifty-five miles of the Owyhee river and the valley of Jordan creek; for about forty miles of that distance, all, or nearly all of which is in Oregon, presents many favorable points for farming purposes. I have met and [illegible] friend settled 30 miles from here on Jordan creek who has given me many valuable items of interest relative to that valley and to other valleys not distant, that would, if safe from depredations of Indians, afford many choice spots for settlement. Through this country runs the main highway of overland travel bound for California and Nevada and the most necessary thing to be done there, is to establish military posts, thoroughly scour the country and rid it of hostile Indians. I learn that Lieutenant Hobart, Oregon Volunteers, is establishing a military post with 55 men, on [illegible] creek between Snake river and Jordan creek where the Indians have evidently had rendezvous for a long time, stealing cattle and horses from the ranches on Reynolds Creek, and devouring them at leisure in this their romantic retreat, where a large lake fourteen miles across, spreads out in the mountains or rather in the lower hills. This movement of Lieut. Hobart and his command is calculated to interrupt them some, and relieve the settlers hereabouts. Another force of thirty men had gone to reinforce the troops in [illegible] valley, to the westward, where the Indians have proved very troublesome for some time. [illegible] in this vicinity and on the Malheur, where two men have recently been shot by the Indians though not fatally.

These Malheur Indians have recently driven off ninety two head of horses from Burnt river, which is a convenient stealing ground for them. It is essential for the development of south eastern Oregon that a large force should scour the country from Humboldt to Powder river. There is considerable valuable land in this part of Oregon, and another Legislature will, assuredly, have to organize a new county south of Burnt river.

Yesterday, when on the mountain west of here I noticed a high mountain range still covered with snow west of the Owyhee river and in Oregon. Those mountains are known to have gold mines in them and may develop to as great wealth as these. They will help to enrich the county that is to be.

There is a terrible hail storm while I write and the noise upon the roof stills the live thunder as it leaps from crag to crag.

RUBY CITY, July 10, 186[illegible].

During the last week the mill interests on Jordan Creek have received an addition by the arrival from Red Bluffs overland after rather a protracted journey, of a wagon train conveying machinery for a quartz mill contemplated by Messrs. Shoenbar & Co. The train in question was escorted by a detachment of the Second California Cavalry under Lieut. [illegible]. They experienced no trouble from Indians on the way though they bring the news that the Indians not far from them had acted very badly of late. In Pueblo Valley which by the by is in the State of Oregon a train of seven men had been attacked by the Indians, two of the train being killed and two wounded. Those who are maintaining that Oregon [illegible] raised [illegible] fall in her borders, may learn with some profit to themselves that during the last few weeks, in this part of Oregon several good citizens have been killed and a number wounded, that several hundred head of stock have been run off upon Oregon soil, and that the road to Humboldt has been rendered so unsafe that travel has ceased upon it, only flying families that tried to make homes along the road, have sought refuge in the older settlements. All the horrors of Indian barbarism were practiced upon the bodies of the two men lately killed in Pueblo Valley. One was burned and the other horribly mangled; the head was cut off and a stake driven through them; the arms and legs cut off and [illegible] cut into pieces and parts of it hung up on neighboring bushes. Such are the condition of things in south eastern Oregon [illegible] the mountains from being settled and the rich mountains of Pueblo known to contain [illegible] silver and copper from being developed.

On the Humboldt, at the south of the Red Bluff road, the Indians had [illegible] California volunteers and [illegible] country. They had [illegible] the troops ordered to Surprise valley by General McDowell had been recalled and [illegible]. Additional troops [illegible] had gone to attack the [illegible] but got out of provisions just as they arrived and could not fight on an empty stomach. The Indians to the number of about five hundred had taken possession of a strong [illegible] where they had dug [illegible] and [illegible] the troops. The Indians in [illegible] country have their own way pretty much [illegible].

The small force [illegible]

At present there is no further security here for life and property.

There is nothing of particular interest to tell at to-day. My next will give the results of a personal examination of some of the most prominent and best developed mines hereabouts, which will show that Owyhee is not a whit behind the expectations that have been formed of it.

[illegible] — Capt. [illegible] of the [illegible], which arrived in port from Honolulu [illegible], has placed us under obligations for [illegible] Sandwich Island papers. The Hawaiian Gazette, [illegible] by authority [illegible]. The Commercial [illegible] also been enlarged recently. The Friend [illegible] published under the direction of [illegible] of the Islands, continues in its sphere of usefulness [illegible] very handsomely printed [illegible] twentieth [illegible] one year ago [illegible], 1863 [illegible] at that time [illegible] history [illegible] now published [illegible] the reception [illegible] President [illegible] leading [illegible] of our late most Excellent [illegible] of interest relating to the establishment [illegible] branch [illegible] and shows a great degree [illegible] the people there. The manufacture of [illegible] oil [illegible] promises to [illegible] successful. The cultivation [illegible] been introduced through the energy of [illegible] but none has yet been exported [illegible] the native [illegible] been under examination and the results were [illegible] to teachers and pupils [illegible] islands [illegible] with a great degree [illegible] common attention [illegible] touching at Honolulu.

A Look at Jordan's Creek.—Mr. [illegible] upon our table a map [illegible] drawn by Mr. Geo. H. Belden [illegible] River Tunnel Company and [illegible] artists. The map is very [illegible] the position of [illegible] the location of the [illegible] with [illegible] reference to [illegible] the specimen [illegible] As a matter for reference this map is [illegible]. We are informed exactly the [illegible] as the county [illegible] the wealth of that region [illegible] is another [illegible] already known [illegible] connection every [illegible] it being [illegible] there are four companies [illegible] the Oro Fino Company [illegible] the Portland Company [illegible] Company. The line of the tunnel [illegible] starts [illegible] a long distance [illegible] wealth of that region [illegible] recently estimated [illegible]

A C[illegible] Relic.—We have been [illegible] of Washington county, a copy of the [illegible] of Thursday July 2d, 1863. The paper was presented to the present owner by a lady who was at [illegible] two days after the capture of the place. It is printed on wall paper, and though small, [illegible] We are informed that the [illegible] to capture our city will return soon to [illegible] the reward such a gasconading [illegible] at the hands of an unappreciating government [illegible]." The paper abounds in such expressions, and is worth seeing by any one who has a true appreciation of the tragic and the ridiculous [illegible] however, is a note dated July 4th confessing that the invincible city has surrendered to General Grant [illegible] of the edge are related in the paper, and [illegible] who sees it will read it through. It has been [illegible] in a frame and may be seen for a few days at the [illegible] establishment of W. T. Shanahan [illegible] street.

[illegible] Case.—The attention of the United States District Judge was yesterday occupied in the [illegible] of a habeas corpus case. A young man named [illegible] shipped at San Francisco [illegible] on board the barkentine [illegible] as cook. Upon reaching this port he [illegible] action against Capt. Cathcart, Master of the [illegible] and attempted to leave the ship [illegible] on a charge of desertion and brought before [illegible] who, upon examination [illegible] to jail and was to have been delivered on board the ship at [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning [illegible] was then heard. Messrs. Trimble and Page [illegible] for Bryant, A. J. Lawrence for Cathcart. The [illegible] will be decided at 10 o'clock to-day.

[illegible] Road Bridge and Ferry Company.—The above [illegible] for supplying travel between Burnt river and [illegible] with a good wagon road [illegible] advertising sections of it open for travel. The [illegible] of Snake river, including the Ferry at Farewell [illegible] the Weiser Ferry and one other are included in [illegible] and tickets given at the gate on Burnt [illegible] the [illegible], through the length of the road owned by the company, 124 miles, including the crossing at the river at either of the three points.

[illegible] New Feature for Oregon.—The Pacific, an ably conducted religious journal issued at San Francisco, in the [illegible] of the Congregational and Presbyterian denominations, has recognized the importance of our growing [illegible] and introduced an "Oregon department," in which [illegible] and religious welfare of the North-west will be [illegible] watched and promoted. Rev. Geo. H. Atkinson [illegible] been appointed Editor of the Oregon department.

[illegible] Court.—Three boys, Wm. Frost, Henry [illegible] and John Burnell, were arraigned before Recorder [illegible] yesterday on a charge of stealing wardrobe [illegible] the Willamette Theatre. The two former pleaded [illegible] and were held to bail for their appearance at the [illegible] term of the Circuit Court. The case of the latter [illegible] Rev. G. Schmidt, for keeping a house of ill-fame [illegible] for want of evidence of the fact.

Water Wheels.—A large invoice of the wonderful water wheels of Mr. Leffel's patent [illegible] in another column, have arrived from the [illegible] and may be seen at Messrs. Richards & McCraken's [illegible] is ready to explain the advantages of [illegible] to any who may desire. We feel safe in saying [illegible] is no better wheel for the purpose in existence.

[illegible]—Messrs. Hall & Hayward have decided to give [illegible] in this city at the Lincoln House Hall [illegible] the 20th inst. From the well known [illegible] of the gentlemen we are justified in saying [illegible] will be of the most excellent order [illegible] particulars will be found in our advertising [illegible].

[illegible] Willamette.—Capt. A. P. Ankeny's new [illegible] Echo, will soon be ready to make [illegible] on the upper Willamette river. The boiler [illegible] Apperson's new steamer, also building above [illegible] was transferred from the barkentine Jane A. [illegible] yesterday.

[illegible] Party.—One of the persons who assisted Mr [illegible] party into the mountains from Oregon [illegible], writes us another version of the affair [illegible] the author of the communication before [illegible] the party went as far into the mountains as [illegible] practicable, and that every assistance [illegible] fully rendered the prospectors.

[illegible] and Lodged in Jail.—Smith, the young man [illegible] badly stabbed Galloway, accounts of which have [illegible] been published, was captured on Thursday [illegible] the sheriff of Washington county and lodged in [illegible] jail at this city on Saturday, to await examination.

[illegible]—The barkentine W. H. Scranton, Captain [illegible], yesterday cleared for Oak Point, where [illegible] will be taken on for San Francisco. Her manifest [illegible] but a small lot of goods exported from this [illegible], being principally pitch and turpentine.

[illegible] Honolulu.—Persons who are anyway desirous of [illegible] in the famous Sandwich Islands will have [illegible] opportunity to gratify their wishes by [illegible] the Cambridge. The advertisement [illegible] the facilities afforded.

Lost.—A few weeks since while in Portland [illegible] lost a leather covered book, containing names of [illegible] for this city and Dalles, to the Directory [illegible] Northern country. We are requested to give notice that the finder will be liberally rewarded by leaving the [illegible] at this office.

[illegible]—The name of Mr. Wm. Masters was omitted [illegible] the list of those appointed to proceed [illegible] Hon. Schuyler Colfax to this place [illegible] It was omitted by oversight of the [illegible]

[illegible]—The steamer [illegible] yesterday [illegible] of the [illegible], in the line of the [illegible] Company to Monticello. The latter boat [illegible] and materially improved.

[illegible] South.—The brig Jenny South, Capt. [illegible] at Vancouver on Saturday last to [illegible] portion of her cargo was consigned from San Francisco.

[illegible] brought us last evening [illegible] papers for July. Thanks are offered for the [illegible]

General Grant in New York.—On the 8th [illegible] visited New York. The General was received with every demonstration of extravagant [illegible]. It became known that he would attend a meeting at the Cooper Institute in the evening, and the rush to get a place in the hall was tremendous. The building was densely packed within [illegible] of its opening. Grant's entrance is thus described by the [illegible]:

At this moment a [illegible] was made near the [illegible] entrance and instinctively the vast assemblage knew that their man had come. Sure enough, as the band struck up "Hail to the Chief," General Grant, supported by Oliver [illegible] and followed by the members of his staff, appeared. Walking along to the platform he was made the recipient of an ovation such as [illegible] man ever had [illegible]. [illegible] man [illegible] the men swung their hats [illegible] their hands and shouted them[selves] red in the face; the ladies waved their handkerchiefs [illegible] and beamed their fair faces in witching smiles [illegible] glared at the hero of the occasion. The [illegible] Such cheers are never heard [illegible] Cooper Institute [illegible] the platform [illegible] bowed acknowledging his appreciation of the compliment paid him as he only could. Sitting at length in a chair he attempted to [illegible] nerve with Grinnell, a lady threw a bouquet at him with fatal precision; it broke into [illegible] parts upon the nose of the Lieutenant General. Another lady threw a second bouquet [illegible] struck Grinnell who picked it up and handed it to the General [illegible] Obedient to the call of the people he rose and walked to the further end of the platform, while every step was a signal for an outburst [illegible], a perfect triumph [illegible] this [illegible] But they were not to be put off. A speech they wanted, and a speech they determined to have. The persuasions of General Wells were added to the entreaties of Grinnell, and thus enforced and induced by the husky roarings of the shouting populace, he rose to [illegible] result. Rising with hat in hand the General advanced to the edge of the platform, and spoke a few brief words of thanks for the reception.

Had the General uttered weighty words of wisdom had he announced his confirmed intention of giving to each person in the audience large farms with modern implements, had he told them that their sins were forgiven on the spot, the people could not have been more delighted, nor could they have been more excited. The American vocabulary is inadequate for the occasion; words would fail to convey a just conception of the scene which ensued. The hall was too dense[ly] crowded to permit of the turning of corners; adults, but from head to foot, from limb to limb the entranced bewildered multitude trembled with extraordinary delight, and manifested, in all known and approved methods their entire satisfaction with the foregoing speech.

The General who conducted himself throughout the entire affair with marked dignity and characteristic modesty, was greatly embarrassed. It was impossible for any one to speak, and no one appreciated the delicacy of his position more than himself, and he repeatedly said he thought it would be better for him to go.

Continued cries for Grant, from those who had not obtained a fair opportunity of seeing the General, disturbed the speaker to such an extent that the chairman was induced to lead him forward and along the edge of the platform in view of the audience, the latter uttering deafening shouts of acclamation.

GRANT'S SPEECH.

The Tribune has the only verbatim report of Grant's speech, as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I have never been accustomed to speaking in public; you will pardon me if I think that I am now too old to learn. I thank you—thank you deeply—for these great manifestations of your esteem and only wish that I deserved them better. I can say nothing more than this—I thank you. [Tremendous cheering, hat waving, huzzas and a storm of bouquets.]

The General remained upon the platform for about fifteen minutes, and then retired, allowing the audience to recover for a few minutes a state of comparative equanimity.

GENERALS LOGAN, BLAIR AND WILSON.

The entrance of these heroes a few moments afterward caused another almost irrepressible tumult. The noble countenance of General Logan, the military figure and bearing of General Frank Blair and the war worn features of Gen. Wilson, the rough riding captor of Jeff. Davis, were productive of magnetic effect upon the audience and the enthusiasm of the moment knew no bounds.

The Case Stated.—The following from the Stockton Independent, one of the ablest and most reliable papers in California, shows the condition of trade and productive industry in that State. The evil influences of the combination of which the Independent speaks are not restricted to California, but, as we have often shown, are felt also in Oregon:

* * * * So far as California is concerned, we know of no considerable investments in any account in the mines, in lands, in manufactures, or in anything else that creates enduring wealth or gives enduring employment to labor. It is not true that this State is source of labor[ers] or that we at this time hold out special inducements to the immigration of that class of people. There are now thousands of robust men all through the mines idle or [illegible] employed. The [illegible] miners, as a class do not realize $1 per day. On the railroads that is nearly the average pay of the three or four thousand hands employed, about $1 50 is the pay of harvesters, these rates including board. Everything the laboring man wears he is charged at least twice as much for here as in New York, Illinois or Ohio, though in those States wages, including board, are fully as high as here. The laborer, then, loses money in coming to California and so things will continue as long as the small amount of capital in the State is wielded exclusively by a combination whose business is usury—the oppression of the laborer for the temporary benefit of one city. So long as this combination flourishes and rules the State, money will be only abundant in their hands, it will be dear to everybody else. Loans at 1½ per cent. or 2 to 2½ per cent. will ruin almost any business. Usury destroys the farmer and [illegible] a mining enterprise as well as public works. The farmer impoverished the mines idle and public improvement languishing, because capital does better for its possessor in his usurious speculations; what becomes of the laborer? Just what we see all around us—he emigrates [illegible] becomes [illegible] makes the rich richer and more arrogant and the poor poorer and more miserable [illegible]. It is perfectly clear that a [illegible] at this nearly [illegible] of the Pacific the State must [illegible] in wealth and population. Two things are necessary to break it up. First the introduction of [illegible] Banks, which will make money plenty and cheap; the introduction of uniform securities [illegible] the grant or sale of the mineral lands [illegible]. Until these changes take place, California [illegible] room for more laborers.

Recently the wife of one of the City Fathers of N[ew] Bedford presented her husband with three children at a birth. The delighted father took his little daughter, four years of age, to see her new relatives. She looked at the diminutive little beings a few moments when turning to her father she replied: "To whom are we going to keep?"

A Fine Thing for the Teeth.—The fragrant SOZODONT appears to have taken a very prominent place among the most approved dentifrices of the day. It is a very popular article for the toilet, highly recommended by all who have used it as a beautifier and preserver of the teeth, refreshing the mouth, sweetening the breath, arresting the progress of decay, and otherwise benefitting the user.—Boston Herald.

"Peter Ormonde Bates."—Colonel Halpine (Private Miles O'Reilly) now editor of the New York [illegible], relates a conversation he once had with President Lincoln in regard to [illegible] that [illegible] the White House [illegible] Mr. Lincoln [illegible] business [illegible] to the proper [illegible] The President in his easy manner [illegible]

[illegible] such things [illegible] the office of President [illegible] the affair is very different [illegible] of our day are to [illegible] the direct contact and atmosphere of the [illegible] whole people. Men moving only in an official circle are apt to become merely official [illegible] after [illegible] that they [illegible] power [illegible] New this is all wrong. I go into these promenades [illegible] of all who claim to have business with me twice each week, and every applicant for audience has to take his turn as if waiting to be shaved at a barber shop. Many of the matters brought to my notice are utterly frivolous, but others are of more or less importance, and all serve to renew in me a clearer and more vivid image of that great popular assemblage out of which I sprung, and to which [illegible] at this point the office that I was in the room [illegible] hours [illegible] with half shut eyes [illegible] that I call these receptions [illegible] public opinion baths; for I have little time to [illegible] papers and gather public opinion that way [illegible] though they may not be pleasant in [illegible] and invigorating to my perceptions of responsibility and duty. It would never do for a President to have guards with drawn sabres at his door, as if he fancied he were, or were trying to be, or were assuming to be an Emperor.

Emigration.—Colonel Livingston, commander of Fort Kearny, informed Governor [illegible] on the [illegible] May that six thousand teams had already passed that point, nearly all within the preceding [illegible] weeks and nine hundred within three days [illegible]. This he had [illegible] an immense number of teams previous to arriving at the Fort [illegible] the West [illegible] with the one cent importance and [illegible] interminable [illegible] mule and ox teams winding their way over the plains [illegible].

WISTAR'S BALSAM
—OF—
HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY,
WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING
INCLUDING EVEN CONSUMPTION.
There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.
In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.
The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of
PULMONARY COMPLAINTS
has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—
S. H. Finley, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.
E. Boyden, M. D., Exeter, Me.
Alexander Hatch, M. D., China, Me.
R. Fellows, M. D., Hill, N. H.
W. H. Webb, M. D., Cape Vincent, N. Y.
W. B. Lynch, M. D., Auburn, N. Y.
Abraham Skillman, M. D., Boundbrook, N. J.
H. D. Martin, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.
The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of Wistar's Balsam have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.
TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.
After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. FOWLE & Co., Boston, Mass., and JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as fac-simile of the signatures of "I. BUTTS," "SANFORD & PARK" and "H. WISTAR, M. D."

Dr Mackay at New York

On the evening of the 20th of May an entertainment was given at the Academy of Music in New York in honor of Dr Mackay the Charleston patriot. The affair was managed by the Masonic order, of which the Doctor is an honored member. The Grand Master introduced the guest to the audience when he responded as follows:

Most Worshipful Sir, Friends, and Brethren: Four years ago I was in this city under circumstances very different from those which accompany my present visit.

The Ordinance of Secession had been passed by the Convention of South Carolina and the State, it was supposed, had been taken out of the Union. At that time my home in the South was happy and prosperous. Commerce had filled the seas with the ships of our common country. The wharves and docks of my native city were crowded with vessels which had come freighted with the commodities of other nations to administer to the comforts and necessities of its inhabitants, or were being laden with the rich productions of our own fertile soil, to be borne away in profitable exchange. Our streets were thronged with busy crowds in pursuit of honest and industrious vocations, our merchants and men of business were acquiring wealth, or had already attained its acquisition; professional men were in receipt of liberal incomes, citizens were paid for their services, and even our laborers, although toiling it is true, were toiling to healthy occupations for competent reward. Abject poverty, and want, and destitution were unknown amongst us. No beggar was ever seen in the streets of Charleston. Every one had enough and to spare. An almshouse, where arrangements for food, for shelter, and attendance were from [illegible] a most creditable system of liberal charity, received and protected the poor, the aged and the infirm. An orphan house, almost for a century the just pride of the city, gave a refuge, support and education, to the foundling and the fatherless. Everything gave token of present prosperity and future growth.

This prosperous condition of the city was but an exponent of the corresponding prosperity, not only of the rest of the State, but of the whole South. The planters were accumulating fortunes from the skillful and experienced cultivation of that plant which they [illegible] gloriously assumed to be the king of commerce and of politics. The farmers were reveling in the abundant productions of a fertile soil and a genial climate and everywhere labor met with rich reward.

But, above all, the political condition of our country was blessed beyond the wishes or the demands of the most exacting. A long continued period of nearly half a century, interrupted only once during that happy period by a few conflicts on the distant fields of Mexico, in which an inconsiderable fraction of our population had been engaged, had filled the land with rest and quiet. Laws were enacted by our own responsible agents for the protection rather than the control of the people, and a mild and benignant government—the mildest and the most benignant that the world had ever witnessed—conspicuous only by its tender operation and its happy results, gave continued assurance of civil and religious liberty to the nation.

In that eloquent lyrical effusion to which the lawgiver of Israel gave utterance, when, like the wise and good martyr who has been so basely slain by dastard hands, he had been brought in sight of the promised land of peace and deliverance, only to see it and to die—he describes the mercy of God to his wandering people in language which may well be appropriated to our own condition at the outbreak of the rebellion.

"He made him to ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields and He made him to suck honey of the rock and oil out of the flinty rock."

But Israel, like the South, was not content with her prosperity, for the Patriarch tells us that "Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked, and forsook God, which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation."

O my dear native land I loved, even with all thy errors, beyond every other spot of earth, why didst thou too forget the merciful handiwork of Him who gave thee thy bright skies, thy sunny fields, thy happy homesteads, thy men brave and hospitable, thy memories of the past in which there was all glory, thy enjoyment of the present in which there was all prosperity, thy prospect of the future, in which there was all hope? Why didst thou too, like ungrateful Israel, become vain-glorious of thy very prosperity and restive under thy blessings? Why didst thou forget the political book of thy salvation—the Union—which cemented thy strength; the Constitution—which insured liberty and peace at home; and the flag which gave protection and glory abroad?

Coming to you after a few years' residence in the very cradle of the rebellion, and cheered by you with this fraternal welcome for a loyalty which I cannot boast, since it was but the instinct of my nature, it will be expected that I should say something of the scenes of desolation on which I have so long been compelled to gaze. And if Æneas could not restrain his tears when relating the fall of his Troy to the Queen of Carthage, how shall I control my emotions when I describe the woes and devastation of the home of all my kindred, the State in which my forefath[ers] lived, and the city in which I was born, and had hoped to die?

When I last visited you, I came to you whirled by the rapid railcar over the fields which busy la[borers] were preparing for the corn and the cotton, which were to bring comfort and competence to their cultivators; across streams on whose placid waters floated barks which were to carry to their outlets the rich productions of those interior granaries, through cities whose streets were [vocal with] human life and industry; by homesteads in pleasant valleys, or rather umbrageous hills, where the curling smoke from rustic chimneys indicated peace and comfort.

I come to you now across the surging waters of the ocean. The railroads have been destroyed and the fields have been devastated by contending armies—the rivers bear on their waters only the dilapidated framework of bridges which, constructed at rare cost and skill, have been ruthlessly burned to check an advance or to secure a retreat. The towns and villages give no echo of human labor—all there is still and silent as the marble city of the Oriental fabulist. The smoke in the homesteads comes only from their burning rafters, and the hills and the valleys are st[ained] [illegible] the blood that has flowed from fratricidal conflict.

I came to you, then, from an ancient city teeming with busy life and profitable labor, with sixty th[ousand] inhabitants, [illegible] of whom were in the enjoyment of all the blessings which wealth can supply—none of whom were without the comfort which honest labor [illegible]—where the people were refined and polished in their manners, hospitable and generous in their customs—where the stranger was entertained with welcome and parted from with regret—where everything indicated the existence of public and private prosperity, with a surrounding region of highly cultivated farmer[s]—abundance everywhere and want no where.

I come to you now from that same city, but alas! how changed. Her people have fled, her streets are silent. Repeated conflagrations have destroyed one-third of her dwellings, while still more have been dilapidated by the terrific operations of an eighteen months' bombardment.

In some of what were once her most crowded thoroughfares, rank grass and noisome weeds have sprung up as in a wilderness and the work of four years' war has reduced her to a desolation from which she will scarcely recover in a quarter of a century.

Four years ago, on the 5th of April, 1861, I left the city of New Orleans, where I had been in temporary attendance on the meeting of a high Masonic body, and directed my steps homeward. I was not then despondent. Although I met soldiers on every boat and railcar which I entered—although everywhere, during that long journey of a thousand miles, I beheld the pomp and circumstance of approaching war—still was I trustful and hopeful that the wisdom of our leaders and the virtue of our people would yet restore peace and union to our distracted and divided country. How much I was deceived in my trust—how unstaken in my hope—you know too well.

On the evening of the 11th of April, I arrived at the city of Augusta in Georgia. I stepped into the railcar and, crossing the Savannah river was soon upon the soil of my native State. All night we were whirled along, and about the dawn of day, on the memorable 12th of April, I reached the suburbs of the city of Charleston. Soldiers were on the car, and the train was stopped a few minutes before we reached the station, that they might disembark in the open fields. Fatigued with my continuous journey of a week, and anxious to reach my home so near, and from which I had been so long absent, I sat impatiently awaiting for the moving of the train into the depot.

At that moment a strange and unaccustomed sound smote upon my ear. Strange and unaccustomed then, but since, alas! become too familiar. The morning breezes brought across the placid harbor and over the sleeping city the boom of a solitary cannon. Were I to live the period of an antediluvian life, I could never forget that awful sound. It was the first shot fired by a hand at the walls of Sumter. The tragedy of carnage then began. The fountain of bitterness was then opened, whence streams of blood were to flow until our whole unhappy land had been incarnadined with fraternal gore.

On that memorable day, in the gray twilight of an April morning, such as our Southern clime is wont to see when the rising sun was driving with this increasing light the fading stars from their thrones, when the air was balmy and redolent with the perfume of flowers, when all around [illegible] human [illegible] was [illegible] calm and serene and the Divine fiat went forth that we should be in the land that brother should meet brother in the conflict of arms, that the ploughshare should be turned into a sword, that treason for a season should flourish, and that for four long years of tribulation the nation should weep for its sins in tears of blood.

For two days I watched from the projecting balcony of a friend's house on the river side the attack on Sumter. I saw the brave garrison, a mere handful of doomed men—boldly and defiantly return at distant intervals the fire poured upon their solitary stronghold from numerous surrounding batteries. At length the day of war unutterable! I saw the flag of my country with its broad stripes and bright stars sink from its lofty eminence in token of temporary submission of loyalty to treason. I wept—my manhood does not blush at the confession—for what patriot could have restrained his tears?

But the day of retribution came at last, and four years afterward I was within the crumbled walls of the same once proud fortress and saw the same brave man who by force of superior numbers and the pressure of a want of food and ammunition had been compelled to haul it down once more with his own hands lift it to the staff head, where it spread its folds to the same serene sky that had seen it fall with not one star abridged of its fair proportions—one glorious star obliterated from its azure field. And as it arose in mid air amid the acclamations of a thousand loyal hearts, I saw that it was accompanied by a wreath of evergreens and roses placed there by the hands of wife and daughters, to do honor to the old flag of their country, which for four long bitter years of rebellion, they, with their husbands and their fathers had in secret loved and cherished.

Ye who, during all this war, have lived where that ensign has been flying from every mast and spire, from house top and staff head—ye who have seen it daily and hourly until, perhaps, you have sometimes wearied with the too frequent gaze, can have no sense of the deep love and adoration felt by a Southern Unionist who was living where it was treason to display it, for the good old flag of his fathers.

From the day that it sunk beneath the parapet of Sumter, to the hour when it again spread its folds on the same spot to the breeze, my roof has ever been guarded by that glorious standard. Deposited in its hiding place like some sacred relic it daily feasted my eyes and those of my children with its beautiful symbolism of our national life. And when the prowess of American loyalty would achieve some victory over treason, our little Union club would assemble at my house, or at that of some tried friend, with locked doors and closed windows, it would be withdrawn from its sacred shrine, while with glistening eyes and beating hearts we would look with love and reverence upon the symbol of our nation's greatness and union.

To the Unionists imprisoned for years not it is true within a loathsome dungeon but just as securely beneath the open sky, within the military lines of the Confederacy—lines stronger than a wall of adamant and more impassable than bolts and bars, that flag was all that was left to observe us in our forced seclusion—it was revered as the pious Catholic reveres the image of his patron saint, and we waited patiently and hopefully and trustingly for the time when the same promises should be redeemed, not of a Confederacy, threatening at any moment to be broken into discord and fragments, but of an eternal nationality, undivided and inviolable.

My flag is with me still—it has been companion of all my days and nights of longing trust for political redemption. It is here and thus I spread it to your gaze on this free land with no fear before me of arrest, imprisonment or penalty for the patriotic act—it will be with me I trust through life and when I shall have reached the end of my earthly pilgrimage, it seems to me that my wornout body would rest better in its grave if the folds of the flag were its shroud.

It was the sight of this flag—the memories of the past which it recalled and the hopes of the future which it suggested, that armed every Southern Union man to withstand the pressure of the social influences which surrounded him—that made him deaf to the seductions of emolument for treason as well as to the indignities of insult from traitors—that made him in the darkest hour of peril love still more for the dangers through which it was passing, the country which that banner represented.

In weal or woe, in triumph or in defeat, we never faltered in our attachment. Proclamations could not frighten us; dispatches could not deceive us. We bided our time and waited for the day when our flags might be taken from their hiding places and boldly flaunted to the breeze. We knew that the hour must come when loyalty would conquer for the prayers of hundreds of humble devotees were daily ascending as an acceptable holocaust to heaven for deliverance from treason.

For myself, I call heaven to witness that no night in all this war has seen me retire to rest and no morning seen me rise to my labor, in which I did not precede my nightly repose or my daily work by a prayer that this rebellion might be crushed and the Union saved.

Before I retire with grateful thanks for your kindness, I desire to say a few words on a subject that is especially appropriate to this occasion and to this audience.

Throughout the whole length and breadth of our Southern land, treason, like an Oriental plague, was infesting the atmosphere with its moral and political corruption, and carrying its blighting influences into almost every homestead. Treason was the topic of all social converse—treason was the subject of every editorial article—treason was the theme of every sermon. The friendly visit was expended in details of Yankee atrocity—editors and politicians wrote of naught else save Yankee infamy and the clergy preached only of Yankee crime. A bitterness of feeling of which you can scarcely entertain an approximative idea, everywhere prevailed, and Union men were isolated from all social gatherings, from all perusal of the public journals, from all attendance on the churches, lest their hearts should be made to burn with indignation at the abuse of their country and their cause.

But there was one place where the band of our common humanity was not altogether forgotten, where the duties of man to man still continued to be recognised. In the Masonic Lodges secession lost its bitterness, and Union men who were "sons of light" could visit those sacred retreats without fear of insult or reproach.

As a Mason, holding a not altogether obscure position in the Order, I have, in the course of my life written and said much about its excellence and beauty. I know that it teaches fraternal love. I know that it inculcates kindness to the destitute and sympathy for the sorrowing. I know its pretentions to be a science of morality and a development in one direction of the religious sentiment. But until this war came upon us, to all its horrors of want and suffering, of demoniac hate and inhuman passion, I did not know successfully that theory and practice could be mingled in the teachings of the Order and the actions of the disciples. I did not know how surely and steadfastly its rays of light could dispel the gloom of this dark night of our national history.

When the first struggle of the infant rebellion began to threaten the gigantic future of ruin and desolation which it subsequently too successfully achieved, all the other social, moral and religious amenities of the country preserved a death like silence. No voice of warning no accent of entreaty no prayer or suggestion for forbearance came from any section of the land, already upheaving with the throes of a suicidal conflict. The Church—where peace on earth and good will toward men should have been at all times but then, more especially the constant theme, was dumb as the grave. The dark, funeral pall of war was closing around the land, and there was none to raise its gathering folds and let in one solitary ray of peace or hope, or love.

Masonry alone, mindful of its divine mission on earth, spoke out with persuasive tongue of exhortation that men and brethren should abstain from this cruel conflict. That it thus spoke is a noble incident of its history. And although its voice was then unheeded, none shall henceforth forever, rob it of the glory of the attempt.

Scarcely six days had elapsed after the first shot had been fired at Fort Sumter, when from the National Capital the true hearted Grand Master of the Templars of the United States issued a [illegible] [illegible] the knights of his command who were scattered over both sections of our discordant country in which he implored each one after humbly seeking strength and aid from on high to exert all means at his command to avert the dread calamity and prevent the shedding of fraternal blood.

Not a month had passed ere the officers of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee made a similar invitation for peace and union of concord that ought to have been heard as Masons as members of a common brotherhood—as brethren bound together by fraternal ties not to be broken save by the hand of death, they appealed for a cessation of the unnatural strife.

And a few weeks later the Grand Masters of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana united in a similar work of attempted conciliation and crying out from the very depths of their hearts "Is there no balm for the bleeding wounds of our nation? Is there no hand to hold out the olive branch? No voice to still the troubled waters?" They concluded their earnest appeal by inviting a Masonic Convention which should recommend some plan to heal the woes of the nation. Had the acerbity of political strife and the cunning of political corruption which were then overbreaking the deluded people with their pressure, permitted the holding of such a convention, who can tell what this might not have been brought forth to oppose the communion of men with the [illegible] the duty of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the same [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] my tongue.

And then came, with the [illegible] the gentle [illegible] of Cyril Peal to [illegible] the very borders of our land. He [illegible] to see the culmination of the war he deprecated. Let us ats decline he was called from his [illegible] of love. May my [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ed man.

And when at last the [illegible] [illegible] gathered all over the land, but had burst forth in a storm of [illegible] when there [illegible] no more hope of peace, not [illegible] the discordant passions of men should be [illegible] with the [illegible] of blood, the Grand Master of South Carolina, whose heart strongly beating with Union sympathies has long since been quelled in death, addressed an encyclical letter to his brethren, in which he charged, in the name of our Supreme and Universal Master not to suffer not the disputes and broils of men to impair the harmony by which has existed and will exist through all the fraternity. Let us [illegible] amongst us that there is war, that strife and dissension prevail. As Masons it concerns us not."

And I rejoice in my heart that these teachings were not unheeded. If there was war without there was always peace within our lodges.

Will you bear with me while I say of my native jurisdiction, where I think I have some [illegible] influence that [illegible] its [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fear the justly is, as [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] him, if not, indeed its birth place, the benignant principles of Freemasonry were never for a moment forgotten. In that city the only place I am afraid in the whole continent where the same deed of love was [illegible] [illegible] ours. I was who were Masons, were released on their parole by the officer of their guard house if a Mason and carried from the prison to the lodge room, to relieve the weariness of their captivity by witnessing and participating in the secret services of the Order.

And I can solemnly aver that I never approached a Mason or a Lodge in Charleston with a petition for the relief of a destitute suffering prisoner of war without receiving the kindest response and the most liberal donation.

Throughout the length and breadth of our land, at the North and South, the East and the West, wherever there was the sign of strife there too was the atoning peace of Masonry. It went into the prison, and gave comfort to the captive. It went into the hospital and gave balm to the wounded. It went into the battle field, and gave rescue of life to the conquered.

Let none henceforth speak with scorn of its unknown mysteries or scorn at its pretended secrets. Let its adversaries be silent before the magnitude of its achievements, and when the history of this unnatural war is written, while all the honor is bestowed upon the hero and the patriot, let it not be forgotten but let it rather be inscribed in characters of living light, to ever undisturbed that when war was beginning to shot its beak—while all other associations were indifferent and dumb—while the churches themselves gave no sign of christian life—Masonry alone sought to avert the impending evil, and when the full tide of conflict had rolled in upon our shores and blood was soaking into the ground, Masonry again came forth a ministering angel to clothe in some measure the stain of our nation's fratricidal contest with a ray of cheering light, and to give the black cloud of war a silver lining.

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

LILLIE'S LOCK OPENED In One Minute.

New York, September 2, 1864

F. TILLMAN, Esq., 218 Battery street,
Between Commercial and Clay, San Francisco

DEAR SIR: WE NOTICE AN ADvertisement in your daily papers respecting the security of the "Lillie" lock. We are aware that you well understand the lock, and, of course, will not allow yourself to be annoyed by such representations. We have just sent for one of our men at the factory and he in our presence opened one of Lillie's best safe locks, after it [illegible]

Messrs. Tilton & McFarland:
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 19th of February last a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and ours with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe with what is left of the papers and you will see that not one [illegible] enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, &c.—their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the cloth-ing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire ordeal, however, no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,

(Signed.) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Camb. Place, Paddington; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; West[minster], Broad Sanctuary, Charing Cross; Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris; who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from these their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies, see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. Fee Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are draymen, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupation in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The advice [illegible] to make inquiry—[illegible] may save you many regrets. [illegible] physicians in eight cases out [illegible] in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Doctor Gibbon has [illegible] patients' letters [illegible]
